

January 2013

To whom it may concern,

I have no hesitation in recommending Terry Golding and his team at Golding Projects for your building needs. We have been renovating our 90 year old home for the last decade having experienced many builders and tradesmen in our home over that time. Due to these experiences, we were very picky when it came to choosing a builder for our extension. I also called and read many of Terry's references' before deciding to build with him, and I can honestly say, what they say is true.

As all savvy consumers we researched and received quotes from many sources before we decided to have Terry build the extension of our dreams. We were particularly impressed with his professionalism, down to earth nature and insight into his trade (especially considering the historical nature of our property). We know the tiny details of the history of our property and it was clear even from this first meeting that Terry knew what he was talking about. We knew we were dealing with someone who knows how to build, not a salesperson working on revenue.

During our build considering all the work that was being done it was a very smooth process. This was due to Terry's excellent project management and people skills. If there was a change to the plan (as to be expected), Terry was fabulous at keeping us informed on how things were going (both with general progress and unexpected delays) This made living on site (with a toddler) much easier than with previous renovations.

Terry's "above and beyond" nature amazed us. We learnt that this is just how Terry operates. He kept on top of our project while helping with our dog when our fences were falling down, giving us lifts to the hospital when our toddler was unwell and let me bother him with numerous questions along the way. Things I wouldn't expect from the site manager! Many of the innovative parts of our build actually came from Terry. His flexibility when I changed my mind or wisdom when we couldn't decide what to do was invaluable. His sub contractors were professional and easy to have in our home.

Terry started as our builder, but we would now call him a friend. If we were to build again, it would be straight back to Terry without hesitation. This extension and renovation has changed our lives and am very glad that we had "one of the good guys" build it for us. We are thrilled with our "new" house and are proud to recommend Terry and his work. Please feel free to call (ask Terry for my number) or email me regarding Terry's work, I am more than willing to share our very positive experience.

Kind Regards,

De and Dave Brown - Maylands (South Australia)
de_brown<at>tpg.com.au